Ambassador of Uzbekistan Aybek Arif Usmanov says PM Imran Khan visit to Uzbekistan in July being finalised

EXCLUSIVE

ANSAR MAHMOOD BHATTI

ISLAMABAD: Ambassador of Uzbekistan Aybek Arif Usmanov gave an exclusive interview to Daily Islamabad POST on the occasion of an online summit between the leaders of Pakistan and Uzbekistan. It was indeed a historic contact between President of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev and the Prime Minister of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan Imran Khan. Here is the text of the interview of the Ambassador of Uzbekistan. Q: On 14th April, 2021 esteemed Leaders of our states held an Online Summit which was very positively accepted in Pakistan, especially in media, among political, expert-analytical, business and academic circles. Can you please brief us on outcomes of this historical event? A: Indeed, it is gratifying to note that virtual Summit at the highest level between Uzbekistan and Pakistan was successfully held and taking this opportunity, I would like to congratulate both brotherly nations on such high achievement. The agenda between Uzbekistan and Pakistan contained many topical issues on the further expansion of trade-economic, investment, transport and logistics partnerships based on the principles of mutual respect, benefit and equality.

Aybek Usmanov, Ambassador of Uzbekistan

The leaders of the two countries agreed on joint actions for cooperation in the areas of economic affairs, defense, security, as well as a partnership in combating against pandemic. At the end parties also agreed to organize the first official visit of Prime Minister to Pakistan Imran Khan to Uzbekistan in July of this year. This Online Summit was very positively perceived and it was the first virtual contact between the heads of Uzbekistan and Pakistan in the history of the two countries. Such active, open and sincere interaction between the heads of Uzbekistan and Pakistan is of great importance not only for bilateral relations but also for interregional connectivity.

I am happy to mention that by strong will of our leaders, Uzbekistan and Pakistan are becoming main partners, whose cooperation only strengthens projects for the sustainable development of the peoples of South and Central Asia.

Q: Pl tell us something about the project on construction of the Mazar-i-Sharif-A-Kabul-Peshawar railway line.

A: This significant trilateral project will provide a completely new transport and transit corridor for Central and South Asian countries. It diversifies the transport flows of the region. Mazar-i-Sharif-Kabul-Peshawar route with subsequent access to the ports of Karachi and Gwadar will allow us to significantly reduce export and import costs.

From the position of South Asian countries, commissioning of Trans-Afghan railway corridor to Pakistan direction will significantly reduce the delivery time of goods to/from Central Asia, the CIS and Europe.

For example, if the project would be fully implemented, the transportation of goods from Pakistan to Uzbekistan will have to spend not 35 days, but only 3-5 days. Instead of movement of almost a month, this will take less than a week.

The difference is enormous. Shortening the route means reducing the cost of transporting goods, which means saving money. According to preliminary calculations, laying the route will reduce cost of transporting of one container by almost 3 times.

According to expert estimates, the cost of transporting goods from Tashkent to Karachi will be almost 1.5-2 times cheaper than the existing ones. Continuing this logical chain, we can already predict that an increase in the profitability of transportation will automatically contribute to an increase in freight traffic and interregional trade. The launch of Mazar-i-Sharif-Peshawar railway will also create a powerful platform for achieving inclusive economic development for Uzbekistan, Pakistan and Afghanistan. The multiplicative socio-economic effect will be expressed in creation of new jobs and construction of roadside infrastructure along the railway route. Only during the construction of the line itself, it is planned to build 264 bridges, 7 tunnels, 641 culverts. This railway project will also contribute to the expansion of the transport and communication network within Afghanistan. Moreover, Mazar-i-Sharif-Peshawar line will become part of the broader infrastructural connectivity of Central and South Asia.

Abdullah directed the officials to accelerate anti-dengue activities for tracing the larva and its eradication so that the growth of dengue larvae could not spread.

The ADC directed the officials to ensure the implementation of anti-dengue SOPs, adding, a vigorous awareness campaign was essential for effective community participation to defeat dengue and COVID-19.

India not committed to better ties with Pakistan

Ambassador Khokhar stated that India was not ready to go back on its actions of 5th of August 2019 in Kashmir

SHUAJAT HAMZA

ISLAMABAD: "You are not dealing with a country that is committed to better relations with Pakistan. India wants domination of Pakistan on the way it has dominated all its other neighbors," said Ambassador Riaz Khokhar. The former foreign secretary of Pakistan was speaking at a webinar titled 'India and South Asia in Contemporary Times' organized by the Institute of Regional Studies (IRS) here on Tuesday.

Ambassador Khokhar maintained that there was a fundamental consensus in India on not giving any concessions to Pakistan on any major issues, especially Kashmir. He added that this consensus among Indian decision-making circles was a not a new construct and had been mir (IIOK) would get out of any dialogue with India. He added that there seemed to be a lack of consensus or clarity on India in Pakistan. Ambassador Khokhar argued that there were four parties to the Kashmir dispute: India, Pakistan, Kashmiris, and the international community. He cautioned the Government of Pakistan against arrogating to itself the right to compromise on its longstanding internationally-recognized principled position on Kashmir as well as its commitment to the Kashmiris. He further cautioned the Government of Pakistan against trading a compromise on the rights to Kashmiris for good neighborly relations with India. "The future of Kashmir should be determined by the Kashmiris," he said.

Commenting on the hegemonic regional approach of India, Ambassador Khokhar shared that India had a troubled history not only with Pakistan but all its neighboring countries. He further stated that India was never a truly secular country, even under the long Congress rule, but Prime Minister Modi had ushered in an era of unapologetic Hindutva ultra-nationalism. He added that the BJP was deeply committed to Hindutva and aspired to mainstream the RSS ideology through re-engineering of the Hindu society, which needed to be clearly understood in Pakistan.

Ambassador Khokhar said that the Government of India had abolished the only Muslim majority state in India, i.e., IIOK, and did not care about Muslims because they were thinly spread out geographically. He further added that the Muslim community lacked leadership and there was no other political force at the national level that could confront Modi's BJP. He was of the view that the Hindu majority of India was rallying behind the BJP's majoritarian Hindutva nationalism because it was propagated and accepted as riddance from thousands of years of humiliation at the hands of 'foreigners'.

The gentle warrior

HE was an embodiment of resistance against tyranny, a tower of strength for human rights activists, and a beacon of hope for those who want to make this country a truly democratic place. Perhaps never before in its history has Pakistan needed a voice of reason and rationality, such as the one that came for decades from Ibn Abdur Rehman, better known to us all as IA Rehman or Rehman Sahib, who passed away on Monday at the age of 90. In doing so, he has left the country's progressives without the light that guided them through the frequent dark times they have faced – and continue to face. Through both written and spoken words, for many years IA Rehman outlined the contours of a democratic society. He was an activist for freedom of expression, and challenged all authoritarian and dictatorial regimes and tendencies in Pakistan. He was also a journalist, an editor par excellence and someone who generously imparted his expertise and wisdom to his peers and juniors.

Born in 1931 in Haryana, IA Rehman migrated to Pakistan after Partition. Being a progressive, he involved himself in the left-wing politics of the 1950s and 60s, and developed a close relationship with journalists, intellectuals, poets, and writers. His circle of friends, mentors and comrades included Faiz Ahmed Faiz, Hameed Akhtar, Mazhar Ali Khan, Minhal Barna, Nisar Usmani, Saleem Asmani, Sibt-e-Hasan, and many others. After nearly 20 years of active journalism, in 1970 Rehman Sahib and a couple of his friends launched their own newspaper Azad. During the 1971 military action in East Pakistan, IA Rehman was one of the very few voices that raised questions about the undemocratic path the regime was taking. Rehman Sahib's was one of the most powerful voices against the dark dictatorship of Gen Ziaul Haq. In the 1980s, he played an instrumental role in the formation of an independent Human Rights Commission of Pakistan (HRCP) in the country. Since then, he remained associated with the HRCP and held various positions there. From 1978 to 1988, he was also the executive editor of the leftist weekly Viewpoint of Mazhar Ali Khan.

After the restoration of a controlled democracy in Pakistan in 1988, the young PM Benazir Bhutto requested him to lead the daily Pakistan Times as its chief editor. He accepted the offer but then BB herself was removed in 1990, just after 20 months in office. Since then, IA Rehman had been writing for some of the leading national and international journals, magazines and newspapers. His incisive pen did not spare both civilian and military rulers when they transgressed their authority. He could not brook any violation of fundamental rights in the country and with the likes of Asma Jahangir, Hina Jilani, Hussain Naqi and Dr. Mehdi Hasan stood fast in his struggle against the violators of human rights. Rehman Sahib's last column was published in Dawn on April 8, 2021, just four days before he departed. For those who value the fundamental rights accorded to citizens of a free country, IA Rehman became synonymous with the struggle to attain these rights. His was a quiet but firm resistance, which was usually complemented by the much-missed late Asma Jahangir. With Rehman Sahib's death, it is not enough to say that we have lost an icon of resistance. We may just have lost one of the last great warriors that spoke truth to power, and stood by the people – no matter what their city, their gender or class.

Covid panic

THERE appears to be some sense of panic over the coronavirus pandemic raging through Pakistan. There are now clear indications that fear is spreading as news of deaths widens around the country. Since it began early last year, Pakistan has suffered 721,000 infections and over 15,000 deaths as a result of the virus. To add to the problems, the country's vaccination programme has been moving at a slow speed. Meanwhile, while Pakistan is one of the very few countries in the world that has allowed the private imported vaccines, there are simply not enough to go around as panicked people rush to receive what supply exists. And the death toll continues to climb. Hospitals in Punjab report that they have very little capacity left to place people who need oxygen on ventilators and almost no beds on which to take in new patients. The situation is becoming desperate. There are fears that the ability of hospitals to cope with the epidemic may soon run out. The Punjab health minister has warned that this could happen and has suggested a total lockdown. While 'smart' lockdowns have been imposed in some cities, and some localities in various cities, Pakistan has so far not gone once again into the complete lockdown that some health experts warn may be the only way to stop the pandemic from spreading further. The situation is somewhat nightmarish. The vaccine supply that had been hoped for has not quite come in, with the donations Pakistan had decided to rely on somewhat slow in reaching the country, and private companies not able to keep up with the demand. In some good news, Foreign Minister Shah Mahmood Qureshi has said that the country has been promised 15 million doses of the coronavirus vaccine from the WHO's Covax scheme by May. As the death toll continues to rise, we have also seen the presence of the UK variant of the virus, which is quickly becoming dominant, claiming the lives of younger people. But even now, some skepticism still exists about the pandemic. SOPs are being enforced more strictly by the government, at least in major cities, but are still not observed by a majority in the country. As Ramazan starts, the fears are that the 'third wave' could prove to be deadlier than was previously expected. In this situation, we hope the government has a plan to keep the people safe.

The HEC Affairs

Dr. Yousaf Alamgirian

Dr Javaid Laghari was the second chairman from 2009 to 2013. He unearthed the fake degrees of politicians and refused to accept any pressure on this issue. He was replaced by Dr Mukhtar Ahmed. Dr Tariq Banuri became the fourth chairman of HEC in November 2018 for a period of four years. It is worth mentioning that appointment of chairman HEC is considered equal to the federal minister from protocol point-of-view.

THE Higher Education Commission (HEC) has turned into another example of bad governance due to many reasons. It has unfortunately gone through many phases of experiments in the hands of different tenures. HEC was once a University Grants Commission, established in 1974 with the mandate of funding, overseeing, regulating and accrediting the higher education institutions. During Musharraf rule, its name was changed into HEC and Dr Atta urRehman became its Chairman in 2002.

He evolved HEC into modern lines. New avenues in the research sector were introduced. Numerous scholarships were announced and hundreds of research scholars were sent abroad for PhD and post-doctorate level research. When Musharraf left, the new government put cut on the funds of HEC and many of the research scholars who were busy in research abroad were caught in the doldrums because of not issuance of the rest of the instalments in time. Many of them have to work to meet their left out charges and a number of them came back without completing their research and degrees.

Dr Javaid Laghari was the second chairman from 2009 to 2013. He unearthed the fake degrees of politicians and refused to accept any pressure on this issue. He was replaced by Dr Mukhtar Ahmed. Dr Tariq Banuri became the fourth chairman of HEC in November 2018 for a period of four years. It is worth mentioning that appointment of chairman HEC is considered equal to the federal minister from protocol point-of-view. However, chairman HEC enjoys much more powers than that of the federal ministers. He can appoint the staff even in grade 20/ 21 on a regular basis. For that, he has to fulfil the formality by calling selection board meeting. Whereas federal ministers can only appoint people on non-gazetted vacancies because from grade 17 onwards appointments are made through Federal Public Service Commission (FPSC) where federal ministers can't intervene.

The outgoing chairman HEC however used this power only a few days before his removal. Keeping in view the ill intentions and favouritism it is a need of the hour that recruitment in autonomous bodies should also be made through FPSC. Resolution could be passed through parliament or the president can issue the ordinance. This will only be done when any government would like to ensure merit and transparency in the recruitments.

This is major trauma in our country that policies of the institutions are not permanent. Overnight changes are made in the policies. Indeed, governments must not interfere in the affairs of the organisations which are protected legally and constitutionally. This cover allows them to perform with full freedom. Nevertheless if govt. sees that some specific person or institution is going beyond its limitations and it is harming the organisation then options are always there to mend things.

During the last few years several untoward changes were made in higher education. If we take the example of PhD course only, HEC has notified that in future the students will be able to go for PhD only attaining the BS degree. M.Phil. course will be abolished. Matter of the fact is the MPhil degree was very useful in terms that researcher were taught new research techniques before they start PhD course work and research. Whereas BS level is not that mature level to do research work of PhD level. However, if new PhD policies are implemented as it is what will be the fate of the thousands of research scholars who have done MPhil? There should be an independent body that approves certain education policies undertaken by HEC sort of organisations.

Outgoing chairman Mr. Tariq Banuri may be a very upright and honest person but few facts, however, prove that he has certain motives and agenda to fulfil during his tenure that's why when he came to know that government has brought an ordinance to cut his tenure, he immediately called the selection board to appoint people on senior-level appointments mostly advisors and DGs in grade 21 and 20 respectively. A report published in the newspaper says that "A statement issued by Officers Welfare Association (OWA) HEC said that the officers and staff of HEC welcome the decision of the Federal Government to remove the Chairman HEC. The statement alleged that after the decision of his removal by the federal government, the Chairman HEC called the meeting of the selection board for selection of his blue-eyed/favourite individuals on the position of 12 regular DGs in grade 20, advisors in Grade 21, four positions on MP-1, and two positions of MP-II and MP-III. It said that the HEC employees showed grave concerns over calling the Selection Board in haste in violation of the HEC Recruitment Policy and Rules. The HEC Employees demanded the Prime Minister of Pakistan (who is also the controlling Authority of HEC) to stop the Chairman from holding the illegal selection board, especially when NAB has already initiated an inquiry about illegal appointment of dozen of consultants".

Such reports reflect dubious intentions on the part of the outgoing chairman. Uprightness and high moral values demand that if the chairman was removed he should have relinquished by allowing the next chairman/competent authority to do the brainstorming, get the applications shortlisted on merit and call the selection board accordingly to select the competent and professional candidates for very senior level appointments. The things done in haste also put questions on the working of HEC and the weakness of the state which could not interfere to stop the loot sale of the recruitments.

There is a need to understand that HEC is a national organisation and not a personal property of any of the chairmen. NAB/FIA should intervene and ascertain the level of misappropriation made in recruitments. If all the candidates selected for the appointments, fulfil the criterion they should be allowed to work otherwise recruitments made in haste be cancelled and documents of all the candidates who applied for different vacancies be reviewed and eligible candidates be called for interviews. There must be many candidates who qualify the given criterion but were not called for interviews.

However, it is not the first time when any government has put a cut on the duration of tenure of any head of the organisation. During the Musharraf era tenure of the then chairman FPSC Jamshed Gulzar Kiani was decreased from 5 years to three years. And he had to relinquish from the duty. Now President of Pakistan has issued an ordinance to decrease the tenure of the HEC chairman.

Nonetheless, tussles are obviously not good for the institutions especially which are related to education as education is the only influential road towards the future of the country. What future will our nation have, depends upon the policies, undergoing now. We all have to be a bit more calculated, careful and honest when it comes to the issue of nation and state. The HEC is a precious institution of the state, so, the responsibility lies with the state to save this organization from Kakistocracy and take measures to prevent it from becoming a personal estate of the people sitting at the helm of affairs. Therefore, viable solutions are needed because tussles never work, they simply ruin.

Pak-Russia relations will change the region

Atiya Munawar

Russia's announcement to provide Pakistan with modern special weapons in the fight against terrorism in response to Pakistan's goodwill message is a significant development as Pakistan has long had its weapons needs from the United States and Western countries. Since then, it has stepped into the field of automatic armaments with the cooperation of China and is rapidly moving towards self-sufficiency

In view of the Iran-China agreement, the growing proximity between Beijing and Moscow, and the recent developments in the region, the Russian Foreign Minister's visit to Pakistan is a matter of special significance. It is the first visit by a Russian foreign minister to Pakistan in nine years. There is a lot of talk in the national and international media that Pakistan's focus is now on the East. This process of looking towards the East is positive for Pakistan. Pakistan, Iran, Russia, China, Turkey and Central Asian countries together form a new political bloc. Russia, on the other hand, has made a concerted effort to reshape and expand relations with Pakistan. This development could be a game-changer for both Pakistan and South Asia. Critical strategic dynamics and policy changes in South Asia could change the perceptions that drove Pakistan into an anti-Russian camp during the Cold War between Russia and the United States.

There is no denying the fact that relations between Pakistan and Russia have been strained for a long time. India has always used these relations against Pakistan. Russia was a superpower compared to the United States in the case of the Soviet Union, so India stayed close to it but when the United States through Pakistan smashed the Soviet Union in the background, India stepped up its efforts to move to the US camp. India is a big market, so the United States also wants good relations with India. India extended a hand to the United States for relations, then the United States welcomed it at the expense of Pakistan since then the United States in relations with Pakistan has grown cold. While India has made it possible to pursue its interests by getting closer to the United States, it has not spared any effort to fill the ears of the United States against Pakistan. This has led to a breakdown in the warmth of Pakistan-US relations. The United States cut off aid to Pakistan and began to make unreasonable demands on Do more. Pakistan has been threatened to teach a lesson in the Trump era while on this occasion, Pakistan has patiently continued its efforts to keep the relations and the situation normal, which is why the US-Taliban peace agreement was signed, but India and the Afghan administration are trying their best to sabotage this agreement. This peace agreement is still in force, but its future is in question.

At present, in view of the changing situation in the region, the United States has also come closer to India as it needed a parasitic country in the region to compete with China. At the behest of the United States, India continues to be at loggerheads with China and other neighbors. On the other hand, Russia's distance from India has become a major reason for Russia's closeness to Pakistan. Russia and Pakistan have gradually come so close that the Russian Foreign Minister is on a long visit to Pakistan. Earlier, Russian forces had conducted exercises in Pakistan now Russia is also becoming part of the CPEC. It had a dream to reach the hot waters which Pakistan had thwarted by force, but now an atmosphere of friendship and reconciliation, Pakistan is welcoming Russia to use the port of Gwadar. Russia's announcement to provide Pakistan with modern special weapons in the fight against terrorism in response to Pakistan's goodwill message is a significant development as Pakistan has long had its weapons needs from the United States and Western countries. Since then, it has stepped into the field of automatic armaments with the cooperation of China and is rapidly moving towards self-sufficiency. There was almost no cooperation with Russia in this area but for the past few years, the procurement of modern weapons including helicopters has progressed while India under US auspices, is stockpiling arms in the region. Pakistan has relied on China's cooperation to compete with India. If Russia moves forward to meet Pakistan's needs for modern weapons, it will be a great help in maintaining the balance of power in the region.

The warmth in Pakistan-Russia relations will make a significant difference in the region but the US-India alliance could pose further threats to peace, especially in South Asia. To address this, the major powers and countries of the region must unite, which has become a natural environment. For lasting peace in the region, a defense bloc comprising China, Russia, Pakistan, Iran and Turkey should be formed which may include Malaysia and Saudi Arabia as the opportunity arises. Pakistan is one of the most important countries in the region yet Pakistan's foreign policy is no longer the rarity and breadth that its role demands. Unlike in the past, Pakistan's changing foreign policy is important as is the relationship with distant friends from neighboring countries far more important which can improve the situation in the region and make Pakistan's role more prominent and important.

I hope our contribution through COVAX will help Pakistan deliver life-saving vaccines to the vulnerable. Australia is home to more than 600,000 Muslims from all over the world, including more than 80,000 Pakistanis. Our people-to-people links continue to strengthen the longstanding friendship between Australia and Pakistan. To Pakistanis here, and back home in Australia, Ramzan Mubarak. Meanwhile, MATSUDA Kuninori, Ambassador of Japan to Pakistan, extended his best wishes to the people of Pakistan upon the start of the Holy month of Ramadan. It was called a day after PPP Chairman Bilawal Bhutto-Zardari announced his party's departure from the alliance. Both the PPP and the ANP parted ways after they were served show-cause notices by the PDM to explain why they sought the support of a government ally (Balochistan Awami Party) in getting Yousaif Raza Gillani elected as Leader of the Opposition in the Senate.

Russia-West discord deepens over Ukraine conflict

Deputy FM Sergei Ryabkov was quoted as saying that military support provided by Washington to Kyiv posed a serious challenge to Russia, and warned that Moscow would do everything possible to ensure its security in the event of an escalation in the Donbas conflict

FOREIGN DESK

BRUSSELS: Tensions between Russia and the West rose on Tuesday over fears Moscow is attempting to escalate its conflict with Ukraine over the Donbas region. Addressing reporters alongside Ukraine's Foreign Minister Dmytro Kuleba at NATO's headquarters in Brussels, the alliance's Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg accused Russia of having moved "thousands of combat-ready troops" to Ukraine's borders. Stoltenberg urged Russia against the "unjustified" and "largest massing of Russian troops" since Russia annexed Ukraine's southern Crimean peninsula in March 2014, after an uprising that toppled former Kremlin-friendly President Viktor Yanukovych, and called on Moscow to reverse course.

"Russia must end this military build-up in and around Ukraine, stop its provocations and de-escalate immediately," Stoltenberg said, describing the troop deployment as "deeply concerning".

Meanwhile, Moscow on Tuesday accused NATO and leading member the United States of turning Ukraine into a "powder keg" with increasing arms supplies, Russian agencies reported, citing the foreign ministry.

Deputy Foreign Minister Sergei Ryabkov was quoted as saying that military support provided by Washington to Kyiv posed a serious challenge to Russia, and warned that Moscow would do everything possible to ensure its security in the event of an escalation in the Donbas conflict.

Ryabkov also urged Washington to ensure two US warships due to arrive in the Black Sea this week stay well away from Crimea "for their own good", saying the risk of unspecified incidents was very high. "There is absolutely nothing for American ships to be doing near our shores, this is purely a provocative action. Provocative in the direct sense of the word: they are testing our strength, playing on our nerves. They will not succeed," Ryabkov was cited as saying. Ukrainian government troops have battled Russian-backed separatists in the country's eastern Donetsk and Lugansk regions, which form part of Donbas, since the rebels seized a swath of territory there in April 2014.

While a ceasefire halted full-scale warfare in the area in 2015, sporadic clashes never ceased and fears of an escalation in hostilities have mounted in recent weeks amid renewed front-line clashes and Russia's reported mass deployment of military units close to Ukraine's eastern border and in the Black Sea region of Crimea.

Russia says the troop movements pose no threat and are merely defensive, describing them as preparation for regular drills. Moscow has also said the military units would remain there as long as it saw fit. While Moscow has repeatedly denied interfering

He said that the infection rate has visibly reduced due to the recent steps and asked nationals to take precautionary measures for the next two weeks. He added that the positivity rate of COVID-19 cases could be increased due to crowded markets. Regarding the vaccination drive, the federal minister said that the process is underway and will be expedited after the Eid festival. He said that the number of vaccines is not enough to meet the demand across the globe. It is impossible to administer coronavirus vaccines to billions of people at the same time, he added. Umar said that all countries are trying to procure vaccines for their citizens.

In Pakistan, more than 1.3 million people have been inoculated so far. Pakistan has the availability of 0.9 million vaccines till Monday night and 60,000 to 70,000 nationals are being vaccinated on a daily basis.

The federal government has continued its efforts to make COVID-19 vaccines available in the country, said Umar.

Umar further detailed that 1.3 million people were given free-of-cost vaccines and only 13,000 people got COVID-19 jabs privately.

Elderly citizens are more vulnerable to the pandemic, however, the vaccines would be made available for all nationals after Eid. He asked citizens to keep registering themselves for the vaccination. He admitted that out-of-turn use of the vaccines was witnessed by some people, especially in a province.

India's reports world's highest COVID cases

MONITORING DESK

NEW DELHI: India has reported 161,736 new coronavirus infections, hitting the world's highest daily tally once again, for a total of 13.69 million cases, health ministry data showed. Numbers typically fall on Tuesdays because of delayed results from tests done on the weekend. Deaths rose by 879 to 171,058. Even those figures, experts say, are likely lower than reality. Over the past week, India has averaged more than 130,000 cases a day. Its toll pushed past Brazil's on Monday, making it second only to the United States in the number of coronavirus infections, though both countries have much smaller populations. Nearly all the Indian states are showing an uptick in cases as daily new infections hit record levels, and experts say that missteps stemming from the belief that the pandemic was "over" are coming back to haunt the country. "Nobody took a long-term view of the pandemic," Dr Vineeta Bal, who studies immune systems at the Indian Institute of Science Education and Research, told the AP news agency. When infections began plummeting in India in September, many concluded the worst had passed. Masks and social distancing were abandoned, while the government gave mixed signals about the level of risk. When cases began rising again in February, authorities were left scrambling, with some saying the government's confused messaging failed to communicate the risk. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has noted the need for people to wear masks due to the "alarming" rise in infections. But over the last few weeks, while on the campaign trail, he has delivered speeches in front of tens of thousands of mask-less supporters. The federal government has also allowed huge gatherings during Hindu festivals like the Kumbh Mela (Pitcher Festival) celebrated in the Himalayan city of Haridwar, where millions of devotees take a daily holy dip in the Ganges River.

Real Madrid skipper Ramos tests positive

MADRID: Real Madrid captain Sergio Ramos, who was already out of this week's Champions League meeting with Liverpool because of a calf injury, has tested positive for Covid-19, the club announced on Tuesday. "Our player Sergio Ramos tested positive in the last Covid-19 test he performed," Real Madrid said in a statement. Ramos is the second case of coronavirus detected in the Real Madrid squad in a week. French defender Raphael Varane tested positive last Tuesday, yet been given the green light to rejoin the team. Varane has not yet been given the go-ahead to return to training, as he is still recovering from a knee injury. The positive test means he has to stay away from his teammates until he tests negative. The 35-year-old defender is going through one of the most difficult seasons of his career – he underwent knee surgery in February and, after returning in mid-March, missed the Liga game against Celta Vigo on March 20 because of a shin injury. Ramos has still revealed his plans once his contract with Real Madrid expires on June 30. – DNA

Iran sees record spike in COVID cases

WEB DESK

TEHRAN: Iran on Tuesday reported a record 24,760 new COVID-19 cases in the past 24 hours, as the worst-hit country in the Middle East faced a fourth coronavirus wave.

Authorities have blamed the latest surge on millions traveling across the country for Iranian New Year last month and taking part in family gatherings in defiance of health precautions promoted by the government.

Health ministry spokeswoman Sima Sadat Lari told state TV on Tuesday that 24,760 new daily cases were identified, taking the total to 2,118,212 cases. The daily death toll rose to 291, the highest since Dec. 9, to bring the total to 65,055.

Lari said 295 counties have been classified as very high-risk "red" zones, and 99 as high-risk "orange" areas, while 45 counties were rated "yellow" and just 9 as low-risk "blue" zones.

On Saturday, Tehran imposed a 10-day lockdown across most of the country affecting 23 of the country's 31 provinces.

Egypt frees journalist Khaled Dawoud

FOREIGN DESK

CAIRO: Egypt has freed prominent dissident journalist and politician Khaled Dawoud after more than 18 months in detention, a fellow journalist and a lawyer said Tuesday.

A former head of the liberal opposition Dostour party and a senior journalist for the English edition of state newspaper Al Ahram, he had been arrested in September 2019 after rare anti-government protests. "At around 5:00 pm on Monday, a police official informed us that the prosecutor had decided to release him," said Hisham Younes, a member of Egypt's press club.

"He got out at around midnight, no charges were brought against him." Lawyer and rights activist Khaled Ali said on Facebook that the prosecution had "decided to free" Dawoud.

"Khaled left prison and was taken to State Security. He retrieved his car and went home, where he now has with his family," Ali said.

Dawoud, who is an adjunct professor of journalism at the American University of Cairo, was detained after rare protests calling for the ouster of President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi. The general-turned-president has overseen a massive, crackdown aimed at quashing dissent, jailing many journalists, lawyers, academics and activists, both secular and Islamist.

Dawoud was accused of "collaborating with a terrorist organisation", "publishing false information" and "misusing social media", charges often levelled against dissidents.

countries did not establish diplomatic relations with Armenia because of the aggression and occupation. And there are only very few countries like Pakistan. We are always grateful for that and this is a real sign of our brotherhood," the head of the state noted.

President Ilham Aliyev has responded to a question at the "New vision for South Caucasus: Post-conflict development and cooperation" international conference held at ADA University.

BAKU: "Pakistan was among the countries which openly supported Azerbaijan from the first days of the confrontation. And until the last days, Pakistan was always on our side," said President Ilham Aliyev as he responded to a question at the "New vision for South Caucasus: Post-conflict development and cooperation" international conference held at ADA University on April 13.

Commenting on the post-war cooperation, Aliyev said: "It is difficult to predict how Azerbaijanis and Armenians will interact in the future. I think to a large degree it will depend on the will and political wisdom of politicians, because I think we need to be more active here and in Yerevan in order to try to build bridges, of course, if Armenia wants that."

We don't know what are their intentions. They never elaborated on that." Aliyev said that Azerbaijan considers the page of the conflict turned down, adding that "we will do everything if Armenia has positive signals to us to try to build these connections. And what already has been done from our side unilaterally, I already mentioned, is a clear demonstration of that."

"We even can talk and I already said it a couple of times about a possible peace agreement with Armenia.

These are our plans. But we do not have any messages of this kind from the Armenian side. Armenian prime minister is silent, Armenian foreign minister is very aggressive and Armenia is not in the situation now to afford themselves to be aggressive against Azerbaijan.

They should remember what happened during the war. Armenian opposition is now actually in hysteria. And Azerbaijanophobia, Turkophobia became one of the main, it always was very important but now, I think, it is the only factor. I am sure that they will build their election campaign on Azerbaijanophobia, Turkophobia on the feelings of revanchism. Therefore we cannot establish this interaction unilaterally. Our position is clear.

We are ready for that. It will not be easy."

The president said Azerbaijan is ready for peace with Armenia despite the level of destruction on Azerbaijan's formerly occupied territories.

"Those former refugees who will return to Aghdam and other cities will see what Armenians have done to their lands, to the graves of their beloved ones, to us to try to build these connections."

Merkel's govt agrees law on curfews, tougher virus curbs

BERLIN: The German government agreed Tuesday on controversial changes to a national infections control law, handing Berlin more power to impose tougher measures such as night-time curfews to halt the raging coronavirus pandemic. The adjusted law, which still needs to be approved by parliament, would allow Chancellor Angela Merkel's government to impose curfews from 9pm to 5am and close schools and businesses in areas with high infection rates.

Private gatherings and sports will also be subject to tighter restrictions as Germany remains gripped by a dangerous third wave of the pandemic which is putting increased strain on the country's health system.

The move aims to end a political tug-of-war between the federal government and powerful regions over coronavirus measures, with manoeuvring ahead of September elections adding to the tensions.

Currently restrictions are decided on in consultation with Berlin and - in theory - implemented by the federal states. Yet in many cases, regional leaders have failed to put in place shutdown measures which they agreed with Merkel, with some even allowing shops and cinemas to reopen. Merkel's spokesman Steffen Seibert said Monday that the aim of the new law was to apply "uniform national" rules. — DNA

US to deploy more military personnel in Germany

WEB DESK

WASHINGTON: The United States will station 500 more military personnel in Germany to strengthen bilateral ties, US Secretary of Defense Lloyd Austin said at the start of his first official visit to Europe.

The move pivots the administration of President Joe Biden away from his predecessor Donald Trump, who set out to reduce troops and shift military commands from Germany over allegations the key NATO ally did not pay its fair share towards defence.

"Today I am happy to announce that we will be increasing the US force presence in Germany," Austin told reporters after talks with his counterpart Annegret Kramp-Karrenbauer in Berlin on Tuesday.

"I briefed the minister on our intention to permanently station approximately 500 additional US personnel in the Wiesbaden area as early as this fall," he said. Kramp-Karrenbauer lauded the development as a "strong signal" of a healthy US-German relationship.

The Biden administration said in February that it would put on hold the Trump-era plans to pull back about 12,000 troops from the roughly 34,500 stationed in Germany.

Although the prospect had been looming for years,

Trump's decision had been met with shock and opposition from Germany, particularly from states where the bases are located.

The Biden administration has stressed a multilateral approach to global affairs and has said it will seek to strengthen ties with long-time allies.

Continuing that change in tone, Austin pledged that Germany would "continue to be an important security and economic partner" for the US "for the years ahead".

When asked if the decision means Washington will not carry out Trump's planned withdrawals, Austin said the Pentagon has "ceased planning" for troop reductions.

The German minister, meanwhile, said she had Biden's word that "there will be no troop reduction as was previously planned".

The meeting on Tuesday came as Austin is set to join US Secretary of State Antony Blinken for a series of NATO meetings in Brussels this week, with the looming May 1 deadline for US troop withdrawal from Afghanistan - part of Trump-era deal with the Taliban - and Russia's troop buildup on the border with Ukraine expected to top the agenda.

The US officials are also expected to discuss the 2015 Iran nuclear deal with European parties to the agreement.

Iran and Russia discuss ties, nuclear deal

Iran and Russia should also boost bilateral economic activity, especially using private companies, in the oil, energy, transportation, and nuclear sectors

FOREIGN DESK

TEHRAN: Iran and Russia have held high-level talks on bilateral ties, the region, and Iran's nuclear deal with world powers during Russian foreign minister Sergey Lavrov's trip to Tehran on Tuesday.

In a meeting with Lavrov, President Hassan Rouhani said Iran wishes to expand regional cooperation with Russia on Syria, Afghanistan, and Yemen in order to help establish stability and combat American interventions. He also called for more defence and military cooperation, especially as a United Nations Security Council arms embargo on Iran ended in October 2020.

"Opening the Zionist regime's foothold to the Persian Gulf region as a destabilising and tension-creating element will be a dangerous act," Rouhani said of Israel, which Iran has accused of orchestrating "nuclear terrorism" on its facilities at Natanz on Sunday.

The president further said Iran and Russia should also boost bilateral economic activity, especially using private companies, in the oil, energy, transportation, and nuclear sectors. He called on Russia to accelerate the process of delivering more doses of the Sputnik V vaccine against COVID-19 to Iran and said Iran is eager to finalise a plan to establish a joint vaccine manufacturing line with Russia. Iran has so far received more than half a million doses of the vaccine, and has had difficulty in administering it as the first and second doses of Sputnik V - that need to be injected 21 days apart - are different.

the US abandoned in 2018 will continue on Wednesday. Rouhani said Iran wants conditions of the landmark accord to be restored to what they were in 2015 when it sia is of the same opinion as Iran on the fact the US must come back into full compliance with the JCPOA, and that trying to add new conditions to the deal would not be acceptable, according to the president's website.

"Any complementary or additional documents on different issues, including regional issues or military development, can be considered outside the framework of the JCPOA and with the participation of regional countries in order to ensure the safety of the region and the Persian Gulf," he was quoted as saying. The Russian foreign minister welcomed boosting bilateral ties with Iran, saying "there are no limitations" on developing technical and defence relations.

Earlier on Tuesday, Lavrov signed a "cultural cooperation agreement" with his Iranian counterpart Mohammad Javad Zarif, the specific details of which have yet to be disclosed.

The two countries were also expected to discuss the renewal of their comprehensive cooperation accord, which was originally signed in 2001. Iranian officials had previously said if neither of the two sides has any objections, the accord will automatically renew for another five years. In a late January trip to Moscow, Zarif had also signed an "information security" cooperation agreement with Russia that the Iranian foreign ministry called a turning point in joint cybersecurity work.

United States recommends 'pause' for J&J vaccine

FOREIGN DESK

WASHINGTON: The US is recommending a "pause" in the administration of the single-dose Johnson & Johnson COVID-19 vaccine to investigate reports of potentially dangerous blood clots. In a joint statement on Tuesday, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the Food and Drug Administration said it was investigating blood clots in six women in the days after vaccination, in combination with reduced platelet counts.

One woman died and a second in Nebraska has been hospitalised in critical condition, the New York Times reported, citing officials. More than 6.8 million doses of the J&J vaccine have been administered in the US. US federal distribution channels, including mass vaccination sites, will pause the use of the J&J shot, and states and other providers are expected to follow. CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices will meet on Wednesday to discuss the cases and the FDA has also launched an investigation.

Russia detains two after huge Petersburg fire

SAINT PETERSBURG: Russia on Tuesday detained two people after a huge fire gutted a historic factory in Saint Petersburg, as firefighters continued putting out the blaze. On Monday, a fire broke out over several floors of the red-brick Nevskaya Manufaktura building in Russia's second city. The inferno killed one firefighter and left two more hospitalised with serious burns.

The fire continued burning into Tuesday over an area of 500 square meters (5,381 square feet), the emergencies ministry said, adding that nearly 40 firefighters were involved in extinguishing the blaze and clearing the debris. The Investigative Committee, which probes major crimes, said that it launched a criminal probe into a death caused by negligence and added that law enforcement had detained the general director of Nevskaya Manufaktura and his deputy.

Investigators cited a "number of violations" regarding fire safety and said that management "knew for a fact" that the premises could not be operated. They estimated the total area of the blaze at some 4,000 square meters, causing a large part of the roof to collapse and even spreading to nearby trees.

Listed by the Saint Petersburg city government as a cultural heritage site, the building was home to one of Russia's largest textile companies in the 19th century. In recent years parts of the building continued to operate manufacturing cloth, while others were rented out as office space and some areas had been abandoned. Fires are relatively common in Russia due to dilapidated infrastructure or non-compliance with safety standards.

KHAYAM ABBASI

ISLAMABAD: Special Assistant to the Prime Minister for Interfaith Harmony Maulana Tahir Ashrafi appealed to a religious organisation to shun their protests, saying that Islam does not permit intolerance in the name of religion.

Speaking to Geo News via telephone, he regretted the incident in Dera Ghazi Khan where a police officer was subjected to torture by workers of a religious organisation.

"This police officer is also a member of the Holy Prophet Muhammad's (Peace be upon him) Ummah. It's not as if he isn't a human being," lamented Ashrafi.

He said the incumbent government had raised the issue of Islamophobia and blasphemy at the global stage, adding that Pakistan had "led the Islamic world" in its fight against blasphemy.

Ashrafi appealed to protesters to think of the people who were at danger from the violence and the women and children who were stranded since the past 24 hours.

Historic Uzbekistan, Pakistan leaders' summit a milestone

Q.: Another important aspect of Uzbek-Pak cooperation is partnership within the framework of Shanghai Cooperation Organization. What new opportunities has this opened up for the further development of our cooperation within this organization?

A.: Uzbekistan supported the full membership of Pakistan in the SCO. It is important to mention that the process of Pakistan's accession to SCO took place during presidency of Uzbekistan in this organization. In 2010 comprehensive preparatory work was completed to launch the process of expanding the organization and in 2016 at Tashkent Summit, Memorandums were signed in order to obtain the status of a SCO member state.

Tashkent attaches great importance to Pakistan's membership in SCO which contributes to a significant increase in organization's potential.

The interaction of the two countries within SCO is a fundamentally new platform for the development of mutually beneficial cooperation in the field of security and stability, including settlement of the situation in Afghanistan, as well as transport, trade and investment in both bilateral and multilateral formats.

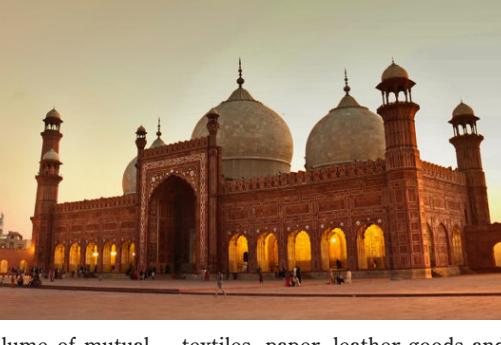

One of the promising areas of cooperation between Tashkent and Islamabad in SCO is considering transport and economic interconnection in the regions of Central and South Asia including in trans-Afghan direction.

Interaction within the framework of SCO Regional Anti-Terrorist Structure (RATS) is being done between two countries on cooperation in fight against international terrorism, illegal drug trafficking, extremism and other challenges and threats.

Within SCO, Uzbek and Pakistan sides have coinciding positions on many issues, in particular in the field of trade, finance, investment, transport, communications and transit, as well as in the field of cultural and humanitarian interaction. In particular, during the last online SCO summit in November 2020, Pakistani side, like Uzbek side, came up with a common position regarding the identification of promising priorities for SCO in post-pandemic period - economy, trade, finance and the fight against poverty.

Q.: How would you assess development of trade and economic cooperation between Uzbekistan and Pakistan and what areas can be considered the most promising in this area?

A.: Our countries have a great mutual interest in further increasing of the volume of mutual trade. By assistance of Adviser to Prime Minister of Pakistan for Commerce and Investment Abdul Razzaq Dawood effective measures are being taken by Pakistan side to speed up negotiation process on bilateral Preferential Trade Agreement.

SC rejects Justice Qazi Faez's plea seeking live telecast

ISLAMABAD: The Supreme Court (SC) of Pakistan dismissed on Tuesday Justice Qazi Faez Isa's application for live coverage of proceedings of his review petition against the June 19, 2020 order.

The application was dismissed by a majority of 6-4 judges, of a 10-judge larger bench headed by Justice Umar Ata Bandial.

"For reasons to be recorded later, this Misc. application is dismissed. However, the right of the people to have access to information in matters of public importance under Article 19-A of the Constitution is recognised, the details and modalities of which are to be decided by the Full Court on the administrative side," read the majority judgment. Justices Magbool Baqar, Manzoor Ahmad Malik, Mazhar Alam Khan Miankhel and Syed Mansoor Ali Shah were the judges dissenting with the decision. On March 17, while giving a rebuttal on Additional Attorney General Chaudhry Amir Rehman's arguments against live telecast of his proceedings, Justice Isa said that he had proposed to rebut all allegations against him.

He said that if he was crooked then he should be thrown out from the court, adding that his family and he were being maligned for the past two years.

Sarina Isa, the wife of Justice Isa, had read out her written statement, stating that Mirza Shahzad Akbar engineered a proxy informant, namely Abdul Waheed Dogar, who then addressed his complaint to him. — APP

Afghanistan: US to pull troops by Sept 11, 2021

WASHINGTON: President Joe Biden has decided to withdraw US troops from Afghanistan by Sept 11, 2021, 20 years to the day after al Qaeda's attacks triggered America's longest war, three sources familiar with the decision told media. However, the withdrawal would be based on certain security and human rights guarantees, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity ahead of the formalisation of the decision. The sources did not provide further details. US Secretary of State Antony Blinken and US Defence Secretary Lloyd Austin are expected to brief the decision to NATO allies in Brussels on Wednesday. Biden may also publicly announce his decision, the sources said. Biden's decision, should it be confirmed, would miss a May 1 deadline for withdrawal agreed with Taliban insurgents by his predecessor Donald Trump's administration. — Agencies

China to US: don't play with fire on Taiwan

Taiwan is China's most sensitive territorial and diplomatic issue, and a regular source of Sino-U.S. friction. China has never renounced the use of force to bring the democratically ruled island under its control

NEWS DESK

BEIJING: China told the United States on Tuesday to stop playing with fire over Taiwan and lodged a complaint after Washington issued guidelines that will enable U.S. officials to meet more freely with officials from the island that China claims as its own.

The U.S. State Department's Friday decision to deepen relations with self-ruled Taiwan came amid stepped-up Chinese military activity around the island, including almost daily air force incursions into Taiwan's air defence zone.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Zhao Lijian told reporters they had lodged "stern representations" with the United States.

China urges the United States "not to play with fire on the Taiwan issue, immediately stop any form of U.S.-Taiwan official contacts, cautiously and appropriately handle the matter, and not send wrong signals to Taiwan independence forces so as not to subversively influence and damage Sino-U.S. relations and peace and stability across the Taiwan Strait", he said.

Taiwan is China's most sensitive territorial and diplomatic issue, and a regular source of Sino-U.S. friction. China has never renounced the use of force to bring the democratically ruled island under its control. The United States is required by law to provide the island with the means to defend itself. China believes the United States is colluding with Taiwan to challenge Beijing and giving support to those who want the island to declare formal independence. Taiwan President Tsai Ing-wen says the island is an independent country called the Republic of China, its formal name, and that she will defend its freedom and security.
